The end date on a student's I-20 form is determined by the college's estimate of the amount of time an average student needs to complete the program. According to USCIS Federal Regulations, students who are studying in the U.S. in F-1 visa status may only extend their program prior to the end date of their I-20. Furthermore, the delay in completion of studies must be shown to be "caused by compelling academic or medical reasons, such as changes of major or documented illnesses."
